THE CITY

Romanian legend tells that Bucharest was founded on the banks of the Dambovită River by a shepherd named Bucur, whose name literally means "joy." Playing the flute he amazed the people, and his wine from nearby vineyards was very popular among the local traders, whom he gave his name to the place!

As one of Europe's most up-and-coming destinations, Bucharest has had to react quickly to its newfound status. As a result, there are a bevy of recently opened venues to eat, drink, shop, club and sleep. Not only this, but standards are high and local residents have come to expect the best.

From Piața Universității, most sights of interest are easily accessible and equally the nearby Calea Victoriei is a great starting point for shopping particularly. These two landmarks constitute the central Bucharest area where many of the most well-known restaurants and bars are situated. Walking in this part of the city is the best way to see Bucharest, but don't be afraid to venture further north, east and west to discover many more treasures.

Wander the tree-lined streets, take in some authentic folk art and sample a range of international cuisine. Whether you want traditional Romania or contemporary city life, come and find it all before the rest of the world does.

Bucharest has many different, beautiful landmarks and the most prominent one is the Palace of Parliament. To get a sense of Romanian history, visit the Museum of Romanian Peasant or if you feel like a stroll in the outdoors go to the gorgeous Parcul Carol I.

Palatul Parlamentului (Palace of Parliament)

Built during Ceaușescu's regime, the Palace of Parliament is Romania's most famous building. A public tour of the opulent staircases and chandelier-filled rooms offers a fascinating insight.

Address: Strada Izvor 2-4

Internet: www.parlament.ro

Arcul de Triumf (Arch of Triumph)

Similar to its Paris namesake, Bucharest's Triumphal Arch remembers Romania's Great War soldiers and its reunification in 1918. Initially, the arch was built of wood in 1922, and then finished in Deva granite in 1936.

Address: Șoseaua Kiseleff

Lipscani District

Lipscani, Bucharest's historic centre, retains an old town charm which is almost irresistible! It is located between Calea Victoriei, Blvd. Brătianu, Blvd. Regina Elisabeta and the Dambovită River and its collection of winding streets boasts antique markets, bric-a-brac spilling out from tiny boutiques and some of the city's most appealing restaurants and bars.

Address: Lipscani

National Art Museum

Romania's most impressive art collection is displayed in this sprawling royal palace (Muzeul National de Arta). Take in works by Rembrandt and El Greco, among a host of European works.

Address: Calea Victoriei 49-53

Piața Universității

In addition to being the centre for Bucharest's intellectual and political events and the most popular meeting place in Bucharest, the Piața Universității has a dramatic history. During the 1989 Revolution, some of Romania's fiercest fighting took place here. Close by are also the University of Bucharest's School of Architecture, the National Theatre, the Coltea Hospital and the Sutu Palace (History Museum).

Address: Piața Universității, B-dul Regina Elisabeta

Romanian Athenaeum (Ateneul Român)

The superb Romanian Athenaeum is the hub of Bucharest's musical activity. Exquisite mosaics and historical frescoes adorn the 19th-century circular building, which hosts impressive orchestral concerts.

Address: Str. Benjamin Franklin 1

Phone: +40 21 315 8798

Museum of the Romanian Peasant

This delightful museum (Muzeul Taranului Roman) opened in 1906 and is widely regarded as Romania's best. A veritable treasure trove of pottery, icons and clothing, it also houses the fascinating Communism Exhibition and the ruins of an 18th-century Transylvanian wooden church.

Old Princely Court & Church

The Old Princely Court (Curtea Veche) was built in the 15th century by Vlad Tepes, also known as Vlad Dracula. According to the legend, he kept his prisoners beneath the court! What remains today are a few walls, arches, tombstones and a Corinthian column.

Here stands also Bucharest's 16th-century Old Princely Church (Biserica Curtea Veche), the city's oldest church. Original frescoes and Wallachian architecture are among the star features in this ancient Romanian veteran.

Address: Strada Franceza 25-31

Piața Revoluției

Whilst Piața Universității saw some of the darkest days of Ceaușescu's regime, events at Piața Revoluției heralded the beginning of a new age. This building now houses the Senate.

Close by is the former Royal Palace, now home to the National Art Museum, the Romanian Athenaeum and the Athenee Palace Hotel. Also the Kretzulescu Church.

Address: Piața Revoluției

Parcul Carol I

One of the most beautiful parks in Bucharest, designed by the French landscape architect, Eduard Redont. Plenty of open-air concerts in the summer at Arenele Romane.

Address: Calea Șerban Vodă

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Photo: Sonya

Bucharest's bars are scattered around the city at random, but seeking out the best venues is all part of the fun. Among these you'll find intimate dens, chic cocktail lounges and trendy newcomers to the city drinking scene. As with Bucharest's bars, the city's most exclusive clubs are invariably hidden away. However, there are enough top nightspots here to cater to everyone's taste. Dance the night away or chill out in more mellow venues.

Deja-vu

Order Deja-vu's most exotic cocktail to make the most of the extensive drinks menu. If you're feeling risqué, a Russian barmaid will obligingly squeeze lemon into your mouth with her teeth, to accompany whichever concoction you choose.

SHOPPING

New shops like Vivienne Westwood and Versace in Bucharest are on the rise. You can easily stock up on designer wear like you could in Paris, Milan or London. Equally, if you're hunting down souvenirs, there are no end of little boutiques that sell Romanian knick-knacks - some more authentic than others.

There are four major shopping centres which should cater to all needs. World Trade Plaza (www.wtcb.ro), the Unirea Shopping Centre, and Plaza Romania (www.plazaromania.ro) house departments for fashion, electronics, housewares, food, cosmetics, antiques and souvenirs. Mario Plaza and Bucureşti Mall are also worth a look, though they are slightly less extensive in their choice. Bucureşti Mall also houses the city's largest cinema.

There are also plenty of intimate places to seek out more home-grown goods. For hand-woven rugs, painted eggs, pottery and Romanian costumes, spend some time rifling through the wares at the folk art shop of the Peasant Museum. Elsewhere, Pasajul Villacross along Calea Victoriei is a stretch of funky boutiques, while art galleries and antique shops are also dotted about in this area.

If you are looking for antiques, there are plenty and can easily be found in art galleries along Calea Victoriei and around the Old Historical Center (Lipscani street). Piata Obor, at Campul Moslior 5, is Bucharest's largest outdoor market with all sorts of food and a mini bazaar. Piata 1

Mai, at Blvd. Ion Mihalache 123, is an Oriental bazaar where you will find everything from fresh cheese, fruits, vegetables to flowers and household items.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Airport

Bucharest is served by two airports: Otopeni and Băneasa. Otopeni is located 17km from central Bucharest (40 mins), and most international and domestic flights leave regularly from here. Băneasa (tel. +40 21 232 0020) is located 8km north of the centre (20 mins), and mainly serves charter flights for package holidays and internal flights.

Buses run to/from both airports – catch bus no. 131 or 783 from the city centre (Piața Unirii) and get off at either the 'aeroportul Băneasa' stop or Otopeni's departures/arrivals hall. This works in exactly the same way for the opposite journey.

Public Transport

Walk, bike, take the bus or the metro around Bucharest. With these forms of public transport you can get around the city safely and efficiently.

Bus, tram and trolleybus tickets can be purchased at any RATB kiosk. Punch your ticket in the machine board to avoid a fine. For longer visits 10-trip tickets can be bought. Transport runs from 5 am to around 11.30 pm.

Bucharest's metro has four lines and 45 stations. Trains run every 5-7 mins and from 5.30 am-11.30 pm. Tickets can be bought for single/return or 10-trip journeys, in addition to the above mentioned monthly pass. Sit at the front of trains to avoid missing station signs which are not clearly signposted.

Taxi

Always make sure your taxi has a meter to avoid unnecessarily high fares. Once this has been established, you are in for a comfortable and inexpensive ride. Just hail a taxi down from the side of the street. Two reputable companies are:
