Reality and mythology, traditional and modern. The great combination of all these makes Crete a cosmopolitan centre and one of the most important tourist destinations in Mediterranean. Crete is the largest island of Greece. Its culture, natural beauty and climate, warm summer sun and cool sea combined with its dynamic people have made Crete one of the largest and most modern tourist centres in Greece.

THE ISLAND

Heraklion is a modern town (the largest of the island, with a population of approximately 180,000 inhabitants), and is the administrative, commercial, industrial and agricultural centre of Crete. The strange coexistence of the beautiful and the ugly, the old and the new, the apparent architectural chaos and the mixture of buildings from different civilizations, makes the city really interesting and attractive.

The fact that you may walk by the Venetian port enjoying the view of an ancient period and in two minutes distance you may find yourself having a coffee or a drink in a very modern and trendy café/bar, makes the visitor have a truly unique experience. Eleftherios Venizelos Square (Platia Eleftheriou Venizelou)—the Lion's Square, as the locals call it—is the city's traditional centre. This will be your first and your last destination during a day. Around this square, you'll find all the commercial streets of the town.

There are many restaurants and taverns offering Cretan specialties throughout the area and also many cafés and bars. The eastern part of the Heraklion prefecture has some major resorts near the sea like Chersonisos, some great archaeological sites like Malia and many important Byzantine churches. Only 5 kilometres south from the centre of Heraklion, you can visit Knossos—the largest and the most brilliant centre of Minoan civilization. Great beaches, intensive night life, warm people, great cuisine and the strange "game" between the old and the new are promising unforgettable holidays in the island.

DO & SEE

Photo: phileole

Crete is surrounded with history and beautiful scenery. Take a stroll along the old port, get lazy on the beach or discover a new pub each night in Hersonissos. Crete has everything you can think of for a perfect holiday!

The Old Port Heraklion

It is to be found on the left side of the modern port. During the Venetian period, it was an important commercial and military centre. The perfect spot for a nice romantic walk, especially during the night.

The Koules Fortress

The fortress is really impressive and one of the special sights of Heraklion. It was built at the entrance of the Venetian port in order to protect from raids. Fragments of the carved lions of Saint Mark can be seen on its sides. On the top, an outdoor theatre has been built and they use it during the summer festivals. The name Koules is a Turkish name, but the Venetians called it Rocca al Mare. The castle is open to the public.

The Minoan Palace Of Knossos

The archaeological site of Knossos is at a distance of 5 kilometres southeast of Heraklion, near the small village of the same name. It is the largest and most known centre of the Minoan civilization.

Hersonissos

Hersonissos is the night-life paradise of Crete. There are hundreds of bars, big hotels and nice restaurants. There are also nice beaches, especially "limanakia," a number of very small bays. Ideal for sea, sun and fun lovers. One hour distance from the centre of Heraklion and you can go there by bus. The buses leave from the station near the port—Kountourioti str, Limenos area.

Malia

Malia has plenty to do—day and night. Plenty of taverns, pubs and discos and a lovely beach. A great party place! It is ninety minutes away from Heraklion. Get the bus from the same place as for Hersonissos.

Amoudara

West of Heraklion is the closet summer resort. Restaurants, tavernas, cafés, music bars, gift and jewellery shops are available along the road, with some beach-side taverns. You can go there taking the bus from Eleftherias square (Liberty square) or by taxi.

Chania – Rethymnon

If you are planning to stay more than a week in Crete and specifically at Heraklion, take the chance to visit two more great cities of the island with great natural beauties, gorges and very traditional villages: Rethymnon is 1,5 hours away from Heraklion (by bus), and Chania is 3 hours from Heraklion. For both destinations, you can get the bus from the central bus station near the port.

SHOPPING

Heraklions commercial centre is located in the triangle formed by the Averof, 1821 and Kalokairinou streets, as well as in the surrounding streets. There are many commercial stores with clothes and shoes for all ages and styles. The shopping centre of the city, does not have many differences from the shopping centres of other European cities.

It's nice to combine your shopping with the special delicacies you can find in the same streets.

"Loukoumades" with honey and the famous bougatsa (pie filled with cream) will make even an outstanding shopping bill look sweeter! Beyond the clothes stores, you can find popular art stores and the traditional knife stores where you can buy the famous Cretan knives.

In the lively traditional market in the 1866 street, you can find products for making your own Cretan meal. On the same street and off the main streets there are many small shops which sell local products and many gifts shops (some of them with really strange gifts).

Airport

Crete has two airports, "Nikos Kazantzakis" close to Heraklion and "Ioannis Daskalogiannis" close to Chania. "Ioannis Daskalogiannis" is mostly operating domestic and chartered flights.

The "Nikos Kazantzakis" is one of the three largest international airports in Greece, and is only 10 minutes away from the centre of Heraklion. If you take a taxi you will pay approximately €15 (including the luggage). You can also take the bus No 78, which takes you to the town centre. The bus takes around 20 minutes.

Phone: +30 2810 397 800 / +30 28210 83800

Internet: www.heraklion-airport.info and www.chania-airport.com

Public Transport

Buy tickets for the buses from the many kiosks you will find around town. The best is to buy your return ticket at the same time. Buses start going at 05.30 or 6.00 and they stop around midnight. They run every 20-30 minutes.

Taxi

Taxi is not the most economical way to travel on Crete but can be necessary sometimes. Taxi Heraklion is one of the major taxi companies on the island.

Phone: +30 2810 210102

Internet: www.heraklion-taxi.com

Post

The main post-offices are open Monday to Friday from 08.00 to 20.00 and Saturday 08.00 to 14.00. Other post-offices will generally be open from 08.00 to 14.00 only from Monday to Friday. In Heraklion the main post office is in Daskalogianni Square.

Phone: +30 2810 28 9993

Pharmacy

Normal opening hours of the pharmacies are the same as shops during week days. On Saturdays they are generally closed. Each pharmacy has a notice in the window showing which ones are open out of normal hours and the address where they're located.
