THE CITY

Duesseldorf has emerged from being an insignificant farming settlement on the banks of the Dussel, to a lively cosmopolitan metropolis that acts as a magnet for the fashion world, where its luxurious Königsallee has become a public catwalk of seeing and being seen. The city puts on countless fashion shows and shoe fairs, making it the undisputed destination for 'shopaholics.' Think you're no longer in Germany? Get lost in the Altstadt, hide away in one of 700 bars, and have a double-digit number of museums and attractions at your fingertips.

Duesseldorf is the perfect choice for the traveller who wants the cosmopolitan weekend with theatre and opera, or for the night owl looking for a party. For parties, underground clubs and second hand shops, head to the students' part of town, Bilk. An obligatory area to visit also includes the harbour, also known as the media-harbour, which over the last ten years has been made into the most modern and trendy area of the city with the help of Guggenheim-architect Frank O. Gehry. Located on Germany's biggest river, the Rhine, you will find yourself at the centre of many of Germany's most spectacular events and all-year-round fests.

DO & SEE

Duesseldorf is a vibrating city filled with markets, intriguing architecture, theatre and social gatherings. Take a boat ride on the river Rhein or visit one of the four brewpubs in the city.

The Düsseldorf Experience - Düsseldorf Guided Tours

Düsseldorf, an old princely capital and now the seat of the state government, has much to offer visitors: be it the Königsallee or the Hofgarten, Schloss Benrath or the Medienhafen, and of course the Altstadt, the old quarter with one of the most attractive riverside promenades anywhere along the Rhine. The Team of Colonia Prima would love to show you a little more of the city, a city as diverse as its inhabitants. Come along and experience Düsseldorf by day and by night!

DINING

Photo: Chris

A visit to Duesseldorf warrants a taste of Sauerbraten, or pickled roast beef, a hearty meal which should be had at the city's oldest restaurant, Zum Schiffchen. But, being one of the country's most international cities, you'll find first-class food from every corner of the world in spectacular locations, such as Weinhaus Tante Anna—in a 1593 Jesuit college chapel, or at 172.50 meters in the rotating Rheinturm Top 180.

Victorian

On the street level there is a bistro with affordable regional and international dishes. One flight up, the one-star Michelin restaurant serves specialities such as roast shoulder of lamb with La Ratte potatoes and wild herbs. Elegant and classy atmosphere.

SHOPPING

Photo: Retinafunk

Königsallee is the most sophisticated shopping mile in Germany, and is also considered one of the world's grandest luxurious boulevards. The street is a veritable who's who in the fashion business. Go to www.koenigsallee-duesseldorf.de for a more detailed account of this shopping area. If you seek a more old-Germany feel, with modern individual shops in the throw, the place to go is Altstadt. Here you can find the spice-witch (Kräuterhexe), Jack Jedoen's carnival shop, eclectic items at Globales Shopping or the mustard expert at the Duesseldorf Senfladen. For a break in between shops, the area is rife with quaint beer breweries where your next beer comes before you've had a chance to finish your previous one, and where waiters join you at the table to regale you with stories—www.duesseldorf-altstadt.de gives you a comprehensive insight into this area. Schadowstrasse is the high street in Germany with the biggest turnover. It is dominated by large department stores and clothes shops, and leads directly into Königsallee. For more information go to www.schadowstrasse-dus.de.
