Embedded between green valleys and rich vineyards, Stuttgart is a true gem. While steeped in century-old tradition, it has been the home to the most keen-minded inventors. The automobile, the office photocopier and the brassiere were invented here, to mention only a few. You will find a lively mix of people, joined together by the region's Swabian roots. Come and enjoy the buzz of this young, green metropolis!

THE CITY

It is hard to find a more picturesque and green city in Germany. Stuttgart is nestled between rolling green hills and vineyards at the fringe of the Black Forest, but this town is a far cry from a backwards country village. This is the home of the German car makers Mercedes-Benz and Porsche and the automotive supplier Bosch. Stuttgart is simply teeming with scientific geniuses. Motorcycle and four-wheeled car technology was born in this city, which has the highest density of scientific, academic and research institutes in Germany.

DO & SEE

Even if Stuttgart is one of the most high-tech cities in Germany, it has more than 1,000 years of history to look back upon. The city has served as everything from a royal residence to a sanctuary for revolutionaries. Nowadays, the city combines traditional, laid-back Swabian culture and a drive towards future innovations. Coming here you can expect elegance and exclusivity with an earth-bound, ecological outlook on life.

If you love a hearty meal, you will love Stuttgart! Here you will find plenty of places that serve hot plates overflowing with beef, sausages and Spätzle. Spätzle is ubiquitous in the area and is broadly comparable to pasta. The national dish, called Gaisburger Marsch, is a stew made of Spätzle, diced beef, potatoes, vegetables and fried onions.

For an afternoon snack, the Brezel with butter is a good alternative, but there is no need to limit yourself to the regional specialties. In the area you can also find a number of Michelin-star restaurants that are just waiting to "wow" you with their unique creations.

Delice

This world-class restaurant, awarded with one Michelin star, will make your evening meal more than memorable. Try chef Friedrich Gutscher's asparagus terrine with crawfish, pigeon breast on boletus potatoes or goat cheese with lychee puree and basil.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Whether you are looking for a quiet, relaxing evening or a wild night lasting until morning, you will definitely find something you like in Stuttgart. Wander around the city centre to discover the plethora of bars and pubs, or stroll through the Old Town to find the small, quiet pubs tucked away between the beautiful old half-timbered houses. Wherever you go, you will find a good mix of people!

Stuttgart is known as one of Germany's most elegant and snobbish cities, especially when it comes to clubbing. The difference between getting into a club and being left out in the cold comes down to who you are and what you wear. But do not despair; there are plenty of places ranging from the very exclusive to the casual and laid back.

Arigato

Offering live music nearly every night, this cosy bar plays everything from rock music to piano overtures. Here you can find a wide range of International food, billiards and backgammon sets.

SHOPPING

Since being one of Germany's richest cities, Stuttgart is abounding with shopping opportunities. The ritziest shopping area is called Calwer Strasse. This is where you will find designer boutiques, jewellery shops and fine leather goods. If you do not want to break your bank account, you can go window shopping and simply enjoy the beautiful area.

Another shopping gem is Bohnenviertel (meaning "bean quarter") which is located just east of the city centre. Bohnenviertel used to be home to the city's lower class in the 19th century, but is now beautifully restored and definitely worth an afternoon stroll. Here you can find numerous galleries, antique dealers and junk shops, as well as a number of wine taverns and pubs. This is the area for buying homemade soaps, candles, wooden toys, antique lamps, jewellery and kitschy souvenirs.

Public transport

The VVS operates Stuttgart's public transport system consisting of buses and trains. The city is divided into zones and the more zones you cross when travelling, the more expensive your ticket will be.

For short distances, opt for the "Kurzstrecke" ticket which is valid for three stops. If you are planning a busy day of sightseeing, splurge on a daily ticket, called "Tageskarte". A single ticket costs €2.20 and is valid for two hours. A single day ticket costs €6.30.

Tickets can be bought from vending machines, bus drivers and sales locations. The tickets are slightly cheaper if you buy them with your cell phone. Trains and buses run from about 5am until 1am.
